Cute housewife is a two-fisted boxing champ

Blue-eyed Cat Davis may be a kitten in the kitchen, but she's a two-fisted tiger in the ring — and the woman's lightweight boxing champion of the world!

The 5-foot-9 beauty has held the title for five years with an incredible record of 20 wins, no losses and 19 knockouts.

And none of her knockout victims were able to last more than six rounds!

"I became interested in boxing because I wanted to learn how to defend myself and because I consider it the most physically demanding sport," Cat said.

"In some of my fights, the fans just came to jeer or they came out of curiosity — to see two women grabbing and clawing at each other.

"But after the first round or two, they're usually very surprised. Believe me, many of our fights are better than the guys you see on television."

The pretty, 29-year-old slugger is just as skilled outside the ring as she is in.

She needs only 15 credits for her bachelor's degree in theater, once dabbled in acting, hosts a radio sports show in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., and is a Class B fencer.

"When I first met her I thought she was a model," said manager-husband Sal Algieri, who said Cat pocketed $18,000 when she decked European champ Uschi Douring.

"I couldn't watch when she got into the ring," he said. "I'd get so nervous, I'd throw up. But then I realized just how good she is and how hard she trains.

"She can double up on the hook and she hooks to the body. These are things a lot of men just can't learn. Now, I don't worry."

But for Cat Davis, she's as much at home in the ring as she is in the kitchen where she also whips up knockout culinary delights.

"I've never felt strange in a boxing gym, even when I first got started," she said. "I was a tomboy from the beginning. When I was growing up, I was always the only girl on the football or baseball team.

"My parents sent me for swimming lessons before I could walk, because I was always trying to crawl into our pool. They figured that they had

Queen Beatrix Signed Royal Decree On Status Aparte For Aruba

ONE-THIRD OF EACH WORKDAY IS WASTED

THE average American worker spends 32 percent of his or her day goofing off, according to a survey of leading personnel executives.

Accountants, a temporary personnel service agency, received estimates ranging from 10 to 5[illegible] percent when they asked how much time workers wasted.

"If these personnel experts are correct," says Marc Silbert, vice-president of the firm, "then the average permanent worker wastes 11 hours and 15 minutes a week — or 84 workdays a year."
